U. S. Obligated To Persecuted McDonald Says

Special
NEW YORK—The United States has an "obligation to see that countries which make life intolerable for groups in their population whose only sin is that they differ racially, religiously or politically from the established norm, shall not continue such violations of the elementary principles of right and human decency," James G. McDonald, former League of Nations High Commissioner for Refugees said in an address at the Jewish Theological Seminary of America here. International precedents reinforce the obligations, Mr. McDonald declared:

"For a century the denial of human rights by tyrannical governments has repeatedly evoked intercession and protests by the Government of the United States, expressed in notes and messages of Presidents, Secretaries of States, and diplomatic officers abroad."

Mr. McDonald, who is now an associate editor of The New York Times, said Secretary of State Cordell Hull's proposal for refugee aid had brought "assurance that the principles of religious and political freedom are still prized by men."

He warned, however, that emigration was no solution to the problem and that it must be tackled at its source. Then came his reference to this country's obligation "to see" that the persecution ceases.

Bolivia Closes Door To Jewish Immigrants

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency
BUENOS AIRES—The Bolivian Government has announced that the Republic's doors are open to all immigrants save "Chinese, Negroes, Jews, Gypsies and other suspicious elements." Bolivia's action is sharply attacked in an editorial by La Prensa, South America's most influential newspaper, which declares race prejudice is contrary to South American traditions. Nations should consider prospective immigrants' usefulness, the editorial asserts, rather than their origin.

Indiana Protestants Fight Church Taxes

Special
FORT WAYNE—A program to combat what they believe to be the Indiana State Administration's encroachment on the formerly inalienable rights of the Church through taxation is being considered by the Fort Wayne Ministerial Association. A committee has been appointed by the Rev. Barton A. Johnson, president, to study the situation and submit a report to the association which represents practically all Protestant churches of this city and county.

BOYCOTT DEMANDED

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency
BRUSSELS—The fascist Rexist Party and the National Flemish organization pressed for an anti-Jewish boycott. Anti-Semitic propaganda has been intensified throughout the country. Leaflets, believed to have been printed in Germany, were distributed in many towns calling on the population not to buy from Jews. One of them says "he who buys from Jews shoots his people in the back." Another asserts, "No more war, even if the Jews want it."

4 Groups Back Students' Meet

Special
CINCINNATI — Four national Jewish organizations are cooperating in sponsoring the "First Regional Conference of Jewish Students" in Detroit, Michigan, Friday, April 8 through Sunday, April 10, it was announced here at the executive offices of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations.

Presenting something they believe to be quite different from any Jewish student conference ever held, the sponsors "hope this regional conference will constitute an example and inspiration to other regions."

The organization backing the conference are: the Central Conference of American Rabbis, through its Committee on Religious Work in Universities; the United Synagogue of America; the B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation, through its University of Michigan unit; and the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, through its Youth Department.

Aims of the gathering were expressed in a statement last week by Dr. Bernard Heller, Chairman of the C. C. A. R. Committee and Director of the Hillel Foundation at the University of Michigan. He said:

"The major aim of this conference is to show the student that religion has something to contribute which is indispensable to the growth and enrichment of an individual's personality. Religion offers also a motivation for economic and social reform which is not present in the mere dialectics of Marx. It is the consideration of the sanctity of human personality and the consciousness of human brotherhood which comes from the conviction of our kinship with one Universal and Divine Father. We hope, therefore, through such a conference to harness the idealism of youth to goals which will mean more than the mere satisfaction of physical needs and yearnings for luxuries and comforts."

Students will attend the conference from colleges in every part of Michigan, as well as from schools in Ohio, Illinois, Indiana and other states.

Aid Of British 'Tories' Sought By Blackshirts

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency
LONDON—Sir Oswald Mosley has embarked on a new campaign to attract support to the jagged arrow emblem of the British Union of Fascists.

Convinced by the failure of the Fascist ticket in the last municipal elections that the Blackshirt tactics, which at times during the past three years have made London's East End a battlefield, would not make headway, Mosley has abandoned them and set off on a new tack.

Fascism in England henceforth is to be a "respectable" movement catering to the ultra-conservative white collar Tories and to the small tradesmen, instead of to the working classes whom the Blackshirts have wooed so unsuccessfully since the inception of the movement.

Financial Trouble Cited.

This change in tactics, it is learned here, has been necessitated partly by financial reasons. Although Mosley has a few wealthy supporters, in addition to his own private fortune, there have been recurrent rumors that the organization has been having financial difficulties. Its principal organ was recently changed over from weekly to monthly publication presumably because of finances, and several paid employees have been dismissed.

The program of outdoor meetings in the East End, formerly the B. U. F.'s chief activity, has now been drastically curtailed and the organization has dispensed with most of its paid street agitators and soap-box orators.

It is generally believed that these men—and they included high-ranking officers of the B. U. F.—were quietly "purged" as the result of a split between the "radicals" and the conservatives on the (Continued on Page 2)

HOLLYWOOD—A motion picture based on the life of Haym Salomon, Jewish patriot of the Revolutionary War, will be produced by Warner Brothers under the title, "My Country First," the studio announced. It will depict the Jewish patriot's service for General Washington and his loan of $800,000 to keep the army going.

Hadassah Gives New Town $5000

Special
NEW YORK—To aid in the establishment and defense of Hannuta, the newest Jewish settlement in northern Palestine rising close to the Syrian border, Hadassah, the Women's Zionist Organization of America, has sent $5,000 to the Jewish Agency in Jerusalem.

Recognizing the vital strategic importance of extending the frontiers of the Jewish National Home the Hadassah national board voted the special gift to Palestine outside the budgetary commitments of the organization for those projects which it is pledged to maintain and support.

An outpost of the Jewish Homeland on the Lebanese frontier, Hannuta is the first Keren Hayesod colony in a zone hitherto unsettled by Jews. The establishment of Hannuta is regarded as a daring and drastic venture. More than 100 men from all parts of Palestine volunteered a few days ago to occupy the area and inaugurate the new settlement in a desolate and hilly section, inaccessible until the vanguard of pioneers built the first road. Although Arab terrorists attacked the newcomers on their arrival in an effort to halt the enterprise, three hundred more men, including a number of leaders of the Jewish community, offered their services to Hannuta.

Tel Aviv Babes Ride In Style; Perambulator Industry Booms

Special
Forty-three babies open their eyes to the world in Tel Aviv each week, according to the rough statistics of a perambulator manufacturer. Almost every one of these babies who happens to be a first-born is the proud (or perhaps indifferent) possessor of a pram in a very short space of time. Of course, this fact will not be news to those who are familiar with the streets of Tel Aviv. Anyone who has not mastered the art of pram-dodging pays for his deficiency with lacerated shins.

Plenty Of Gadgets.

Prams are not a matter of masses and classes in Tel Aviv, said our informant. Parents are inordinately proud of their offspring. Therefore the Colonels lady and the Yemenite charwoman are apt to choose the same model of prams for their new arrivals. The "char" who pays monthly instalments, has mortgaged a goodly part of a few months' salary, but, "en davar," "malesh" and a happy shrug of the shoulders. Little Moshe will be wheeled down Allenby street to the seashore in royal state, as he deserves, and that's really all that matters.

How to satisfy the tastes and whims of these mothers, is the problem of the Palestinian pram maker. Anyone who has had a close-up view of Tel Aviv's latest models will know that the problem has been tackled in dead earnest. They are beginning to have as many mysterious gadgets as an American automobile and only a mother or a manufacturer can probably understand them. To a rank outsider they are awesome, giving the impression of doing everything for baby except keeping him dry.

Idea Is New.

But let's start at the beginning of this pram saga. As recently as 15 years ago it was as easy to sell ice skates in Tel Aviv as a baby carriage. Mothers hardly considered them part of a baby's equipment. There were very few streets. The streets were apt to be a sea of mud during the rainy season. Babies were given airings, but not promenades. The few prams on the scene were important and there pedestrian traffic.

Then, about ten years ago, the first baby carriage factory put its production on the market. Since then others have sprung up in Tel Aviv, Haifa, and even in the communal settlement of Naana.

Passover Prayer Asks Divine Aid For Oppressed

Special
NEW YORK—A Passover prayer of supplication asking heavenly help for "a world that is very sick and whose pains Israel is especially made to feel" will be read in Jewish synagogues and temples throughout the country on the Sabbath before Passover, Friday evening, April 8th, and Saturday morning, April 9th. The prayer, which was written "with great sorrow in our hearts", by a Committee of the Synagogue Council of America, the united voice of all shades of rabbinical and lay spiritual authority in the United States, asks deliverance, as in Biblical times, for "the large numbers of our brethren in other lands, in these times of darkness and stress."

Issued by Dr. Elias Margolis of Mt. Vernon, Chairman of the Synagogue Council, the prayer was written by a committee composed of Dr. Samuel Schulman, rabbi emeritus of Temple Emanu-El New York, chairman; Dr. Elias Solomon, rabbi of Congregation Shaare Zedek, New York, and Dr. Leo Jung, rabbi of the Jewish Center of New York. It will be read in the regular services preceding the prescribed prayer for the United States government.

The Synagogue Council's constituent parts comprise the three rabbinical and lay groups representing Reform, Conservative and Orthodox Judaism in America. The organizations are: Central Conference of American Rabbis and the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, Reform groups; Rabbinical Assembly of America and the United Synagogue of America, Conservative group; and Rabbinical Council of the Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations of America and the Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations.

Asking the Lord to note "the multitudes of our brethren who have been slain, wounded, driven out from their native lands, robbed of their possessions, hurled from places of eminence which they had deservedly reached", the prayer beseeches heavenly help. It cries for "speedy deliverance to the sons and daughters of Israel who are singled out for persecution because they bear the name of a people consecrated to Thy service. Lord of the spirits of all flesh, who didst teach justice and love to the world, deliver all men and women of whatever race or creed, where they suffer, because liberty and right are overthrown by the wicked arrogance of those who boast their brutal power and brazenly deny Thy teachings of righteousness."

"Father of mankind, come quickly, and illumine the whole world that the shadows may flee away, that all hatred and iniquity be driven out of human hearts. Reveal the might of Thy spirit so that all nations, races and creeds be ennobled. Strengthen liberty and justice in the commonwealths of men. Plant pity and compassion and love of peace, in human hearts. May those who are in authority recognize that not power but righteousness exalteth a nation. In the world's redemption from evil may Thy servant, Israel, find its salvation. May Thy Kingdom of truth, justice, love and peace, come speedily."

Church Papers Oppose 'Temple' At World's Fair

Special
NEW YORK — The proposed erection of a Temple of Religion at the World's Fair, as a symbol of religious liberty in America, has drawn sharp criticism from two leading religious journals, the Living Church (Episcopal) and America, (Catholic).

Terming the Temple of Religion, "a vague architectural tribute to 'religion,'" America finds the Temple without "lesson, meaning or significance."

"Precisely that impression will be conveyed by the religion tower at the World's Fair which the Communists wish to have conveyed," America states, "and which they consider vastly more effective in destroying religion in this country than any violent attack: the impression that religion is an empty thing, a meaningless 'mysticism,' a mere escape from the reality of life."

The Living Church directs criticism at a ruling of Fair officials that religious exhibits are to be prohibited. This ruling is said to have been promulgated in view of the plan for the non-sectarian "temple of religious freedom."

TEL AVIV BABES

Even ten years ago anything which perambulated on four wheels was good enough. But Tel Aviv began to spread. Streets were really streets. Baby had to get around a bit. But like everything else in Tel Aviv, prams were rough and ready. One did not worry about the material of the hood or the mechanism of the wheels. As long as the wheels went around both manufacturer and mother, and probably baby too were more than satisfied.

Personality In Color.

But what changes have been wrought, especially during the past year! Even the color tastes of the mothers are taken into serious consideration. We were told that grey, although most practical, is far from being a favorite. Only the unimaginative choose grey. White and yellow stand at the top of the list. "Those colors express the personality of the city," solemnly explained our manufacturer.

About seven months ago, two revolutionary changes were made. Springs and axles were added to the chassis. This prevents His Majesty the Baby from joggling, quiets his nerves, aids his digestion, makes his hair curl, and, in general, gives him the proper psychological approach to the vicissitudes of the life into which he has just been so rudely catapulted. Today there isn't a self-respecting baby in Tel Aviv who would care to show his face in public unless he was riding on springs and axles. In fact, they say that most of the apparently senseless cooing and babbling which one hears coming out of carriages on the streets of Tel Aviv isn't senseless at all. It concerns axles and springs.

Gadgets Galore.

And if it doesn't concern axles, then it concerns oil-cloth. Until less than a year ago, the greater part of a Palestinian manufactured carriage was oil-cloth. But this proved inadequate protection against the Tel Aviv sun. If you look at this year's models, you will notice that practically the entire carriage is made of wood, including the hood.

As for the gadgets, they are numerous and wonderful. There are cubby holes in one place for bottles and cubby holes in another place for "napies". There are cubby holes for mother's pocketbook. Windows are constructed one way to guard against the sun and another way to guard against the

Rabbi Louis Egelson To Read Air Services

Special
CINCINNATI—Rabbi Louis I. Egelson of Cincinnati will read the services on the "Synagogue of the Air" during the month of April. The "Synagogue of the Air" is a weekly Jewish religious broadcast under the joint sponsorship of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations and its affiliate, the National Federation of Temple Sisterhoods. The program originates in the studios of Station WLW, Cincinnati, and is heard at 9:45 p.m., every Saturday.

Rabbi Egelson is assistant director of the Department of Synagogue and School Extension of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations. He is secretary of the Tract Commission of the Central Conference of American Rabbis. Among his published works are "Confirmation Practices in the Jewish Religious School" and "The Layman in Reform Judaism."

lain. Green celluloid guards against the glare. Baby's every need is anticipated. In fact, were baby a light traveler, he might start out for the Hebrides in one of these 1937-38 chariots. Of course, his aesthetic needs are provided for in the fringes with which all Tel Avivians are familiar.

But do not think that when a family has acquired one of these contraptions with everything but an electric lift their worries are over. There are three baby carriages in the life of an average Tel Aviv baby, we were told. This represents an investment of a little more than five pounds. The first is for the unspoiled newcomer. The second type is used when His Majesty has attained the age of one and is ashamed to be smothered in comforts. The third type is for the two-year-old who does quite a bit of toddling around on his own, but likes to be pushed now and again.

New Models Yearly.

In the small factory which we visited on Hehalutz street, we were not only shown this year's models, but the blue prints for next year's models. Obviously, this is a secret which must be kept. However, when, in a few months, a pram starts crawling up your back take a close look (after you have finished telling the mother what you think of her) and you'll be seeing one of the latest blue-print models.

Is it any wonder that the "infantry" of Tel Aviv have so much to chatter about? Axels under them, wooden hoods over them, green celluloid to the right of them, fringes in front of them, and cubby holes all around them.—(Palestine Post.)

Towns May Be Made To Pay Tax Losses

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency
BERLIN—The possibility that the whole Jewish community will be held liable if a Jew leaves the country without settling his tax bills has been advanced by Herr Mutschmann, Gauleiter of Saxony. Addressing a crowded meeting in Dresden, Herr Mutschmann, alleged that a Jewish shop-owner recently succeeded in fleeing to a foreign country while still owing the State several hundred thousand marks.

"It is necessary to consider," he declared, "whether in such cases all the Jews in the town should not be held responsible for losses of this kind."

AID OF BRITISH

question of policy. The "radicals"—those who had conducted the East End campaign—wanted the intensification of Jew-baiting activities which had brought the organization more publicity than all its other activities combined. Although, according to reports, they lost the fight when Mosley lined up with their opponents, anti-Semitism remains an important plank in the B. U. F. program.

But the chief blow the organization suffered was the enactment a year ago of the Public Order Bill which prohibited the wearing of uniforms by political bodies and political possessions. Deprived of their uniforms, most of Mosley's storm troops faded away and the organization lost its main attraction for young lads who were the bulk of its membership and its likeliest recruits.

Another factor affecting the organization was the decision of the Newsdealers Association not to handle the Fascist papers. As a result, it is easier to get them at a Berlin newsstand than in London. The decision of the newsdealer was not political but was based on a wholesome fear of British libel law which holds distributors as well as printers and publishers of libelous material liable for damages.

These factors, combined with the dismal showing the B. U. F. candidates made in the last municipal elections when, despite their most intensive campaign they failed to win a single seat, brought the fortune of the organization to its lowest ebb at the beginning of this year and led Mosley, in desperation, to find some new means of saving it from collapse.

75 Percent Of Jewish Lawyers In Reich 'Out'

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency
BERLIN — Statutory prescriptions and the increasing pressure of a Party-inspired boycott have forced three out of every four Jewish lawyers to leave the bar since January, 1933. According to official statistics just released, there remain 1,700 Jews, among the 17,360 lawyers now practicing throughout the Reich. When Hitler assumed power five years ago, Jewish lawyers numbered about 7,000.

Viewed in terms of "Aryanization," there is no question of the signal victory achieved in the legal field by the National Socialist Party. With Jewish lawyers dropping out at the current rate of about 500 a year, it will only be a short time before the profession is almost 100 per cent "Aryanized." But if what the Nazis wanted—and many of their leaders have so declared themselves—was to give an "Aryan" a job for every one lost by a Jew, then their achievement in the legal profession has been less impressive.

The fact is that while 5,300 Jewish attorneys have been driven out of their profession in the last five years, the total number of lawyers throughout the Reich has also decreased by at least 3,000. It is evident that some 2,300 Jewish attorneys have not been replaced by "Aryans" or anyone else, but have simply disappeared from the legal scene.

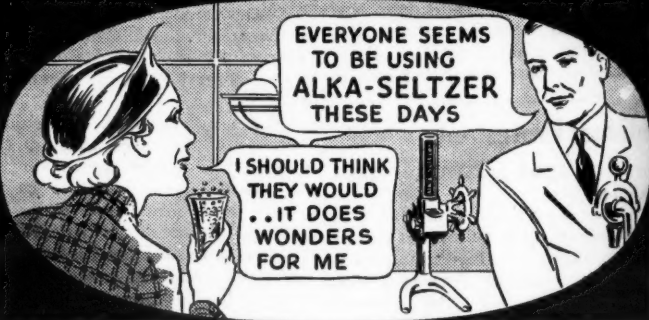

Informed observers read into these figures not only the wrecking of Jewish participants in the profession, but a decline in the profession as a whole since the Nazis came into power. While no exact statistics are available as to the earning power of lawyers, there is reason to believe that with many of them, business is poor and becoming poorer.

PEOPLE AND PLACES

By KEY HOLE KATY

Back Again Folks

HI HO again and have you missed me? Guess the editor was playing an April fool joke last week. Methinks everyone and his brother attended the Indiana Union of Jewish Youth Conclave in South Bend last week-end. Didn't know there were so many Jews in the State. Enthusiasm, exuberant, and colossal are the three words epitomizing the conclave spirit. Love must have been in bloom in South Bend since it certainly caused a handsome young man whom we have previously nicknamed in this column "Mr. Esquire" to give his S. A. M. pin to a beautiful and intriguing young lady from Gary. Who could it have been? Jeanette Patnick, formerly of the Indiana Jewish Chronicle, has been seen wearing a wedding ring she received from a certain young man in South Bend. Why does everyone insist on calling Doris Elizabeth Gunter (Beverly Hills, Cal.) Mrs. Keiffer since she attended the Conclave? Fess up "Roxy." Can you keep a secret? Key Hole Katy hears that Rosalie Klain of Marion and Eli Mark of Frankfort have announced their engagement. Also one we think will be announced in the near future is the engagement of Anna Louise Rosen of St. Joe, Mo., to Julian Savesky of Marion. What's the name of the sweet, charming girl in Missouri that Lester Tavel has "ringed"? Fran (attorney) Cohen, attractive young head of the Business and Professional Women's Group of Hadassah, has been having her troubles these days. Attorney Cohen is not engaged. it's her cousin by the same name who recently announced her engagement to a young man from N. Y. C. Congrats

The Birth of the Week Club announces its latest edition this time authored by Sam and Florence Kroot. "Baby Martin Joseph" was published at the Methodist Hospital at 2 a.m., Thursday morning. Congrats, Sam and Florence. We hope this is the beginning of a fifteen foot book shelf. And so, my friends, until Meyer B. Cohen is made head of the Anti-Defamation League, I'll be seeking you and I do, ah dew, and I due mean adieu.

CONFESSION: "I am called a murderer and a tyrant."—Adolf Hitler, in a plebiscite speech at Berlin..... The Great Goebbels must be slipping..... To have let that information seep through to his Fuehrer from the outside world.....

GOODWILL: A Presbyterian church in the city of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., is now occupied by a Jewish congregation..... Which uses the building rent-free..... Nor does the church lose anything by the arrangement..... Since the Presbyterian congregation, having moved to another edifice without selling its original building, would have had to pay taxes unless the building continued to be used for religious purposes.....

PURCHASE: New York's Second Avenue is rife with speculation on what David Shapiro, publisher of The Day, expects to do with the scenery of "The Eternal Road"..... which he is said to have purchased for the sum of $15,000.

ELECTION: O'Keefe, a 10-year-old, was nominated for class president in the fifth grade of a public school of a swanky New York suburb..... After the election, a girl classmate for whom he had no particular liking approached him and said..... "You know, I voted for you today."..... "How's that," young O'Keefe replied, "You don't know me well."..... Said the young miss: "Well, the other two candidates were Jews."..... The little lady found out later that the lad she voted for was half Jewish, on his mother's side.....

AUTHOR: In the German Who's Who, the Reichsminister for Agriculture and Foodstuffs, Walther Darre, is listed as an author, in addition to other attainments..... On the strength of a book published under his name and called "The Murder of the Pig," in which he blames the Jews for the wholesale slaughter of pigs in the first years of the World War, which allegedly led to a food shortage later..... It now develops that Darre took the easy road to literary fame..... Having simply lifted verbatim from the writings, penned some twenty years ago, of one August Skalweit who published a book entitled "The Pig Under War Management"..... The editors of Das Neue Tage-Buch, German emigre periodical published in Paris, are now conducting an investigation into the source of other of Darre's alleged writings.

SILENCE: The anti-Semitic press of Germany and Austria was strangely silent about the death of Gabrielle D'Annunzio..... In contrast to their denunciations of the poet, some years back, as a Jew whose real name was Gabriel Rappoport, a native of Galicia.....

ORGANIST: When the son of Dr. A. A. Brill, noted psychiatrist and translator of Freud, was small he balked so much at taking music lessons that his father permitted him to abandon them..... Today, Dr. Brill reveals, his son is a student at Harvard..... Has suddenly developed a passion for music..... And has slapped together an organ on which he spends much of his leisure time.....

MISH-MASH: A Manchester Jewish sculptor, Maurice Rottesman, has been employed by a Catholic cathedral in restoration work on some of its statuary..... He has done similar jobs for many Roman Catholic churches and convents in the Manchester district..... In the desert near Tunis, believe-it-or-not, there dwell the last of the Tunisian cave-dwellers..... They are Jews..... Live a primitive life, have skins almost as white as the chalk soil of their caves, are attractive but shy, silent, grave and courteous..... All of which is reported by a German woman writer named Maxa Nordau, who recently visited the forgotten people in their remarkable subterranean community..... Dr. Martin Buber, the noted philosopher, authority on Jewish mysticism and translator of one of the most popular German-Jewish versions of the Bible, will be given an honorary degree by the Hebrew Union College at the May commencement exercises..... Carl Alpert of the Boston Jewish Advocate is as facile on the podium as he is with the typewriter..... He averages about two talks a week before various Jewish groups in New England..... And is becoming known as the Jewish Professor Quiz.....

SEATTLE, Wash.—A goateed, hoarse-voiced, 6 foot tall man whose shrewd blue eyes look at you through steel-rimmed glasses and who looks 15 years younger than his 66 years, today is the state's No. 1 dairy farmer.

He is Alex Sender, who was Seattle's first Jewish milkman 17 years ago and who today is the new owner of the 535-acre Hollywood Farms near Woodinville, the state's largest dairy farm and famed throughout the nation as a model farm and showplace.

Two years ago, at 64, Mr. Sender was tested for an insurance policy. He passed, pronounced by the examining doctor as "unusually fit."

All his teeth are his own. His step is vigorous, his conversation animated. He still gets up at 4 a.m., every morning—at 66!

An observant Jew, he has never missed a day "davening," he tells you. He's proud that this year his prize cows—there were 100 cows on the farm and he is adding 200 more cows from his 180-acre farm near Kent to the herd—will furnish Passover milk to Seattle Jewry this year.

Mr. Sender comes from three generations of farmers. He was born on his father's farm near Odessa, Russia. His father was a farmer, too.

The tall, erect farmer is no country hick, though he's bought and traded cows since he was a youth in his teens, knows the feel of the hot sun burning down on his back as he plowed a field, has slept in the open fields on his cow-trading expeditions in Russia.

This farmer wears a wristwatch, talks glibly of butterfat content, farmers' associations, contracts and mortgages. He is dressed impeccably correct, even to pigskin gloves.

But he can still at 66, pitch a load of hay!

And he's content to remind those who wonder about a farmer's lot that he came to Seattle 17 years ago with $7 in his pocket, started out on a dairy route selling milk, made enough money to bring his family here, buy a farm and trade cattle on the side, lost a considerable fortune in 1929 and—at 66—made a comeback that today finds him owner of the state's largest dairy farm, one of the largest in the nation.

He'll tell you, with a smack of his lips, that "there's no better medicine in the world than milk, warm and fresh right from the cow."

OUR FILM FOLK of HOLLYWOOD

By HELEN ZIGMOND

HOLLYWOOD—With "Skippy," "Sooky," "Tom Sawyer," "Huckleberry Finn," "Mad About Music," and others to his credit, Norman Taurog is undoubtedly the most successful children's director in film-dom. Years ago he was a child actor, and hasn't forgotten how he felt or wanted to be treated. His method, obtaining such excellent results, consists of discipline by kindness, winning the child's confidence, appealing to his sense of fair play, never showing favoritism, and never breaking a promise.

Who said, "Clothes make the man"? Luise Rainer played an entire picture ("Good Earth") in a hand-me-down Chinese costume which entailed the studio expenditure of $1.69—and won the Academy Award!

Jack Benny received a fan letter. It ran on and on like this—"Dear Benny: Give the enclosed clipping to your wife, Mary, and tell her to send me a photo of herself. I am still laughing at the crack she made about the increased size of your head after you received top rating on the radio. She is a charming woman with large but beautiful eyes...." "Fine thing!" humphed Jack. "No mention of MY large but beautiful eyes!"

So that his children, Ronnie and Sandra, may have ALL the funnies to read, George Burns subscribes to twenty-six newspapers! "And a little child....."

Report is that many of the Vienna prominents, "Aryans" and "non-Aryans" of the film industry, would like to speed to this movie mecca. Already American companies have been ordered to demote all Jewish executives of their Austrian film exchanges. Hollywood friends answered his S.O.S. by cabling funds to Oscar Strauss, the composer, stranded in a Swiss village to which he had escaped. Some news service erroneously announced that Max Reinhardt was detained in Austria. He is currently at work on the Warner lot. A certain "airchestra" on a national network was scheduled to play, "Vienna, City of My Dreams," but in face of events made a quick switch in program. Harrowing was Albertina Rasch's refusal to attend a recent party, "I am in mourning for too many friends in Austria."

Edward Robinson admits he suffered stage-fright the other day when he was presented to the First Lady, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Scraps and Scribbles: Josef von Sternberg's reminiscence to be London-published as, "I Begin Again" will cause some eye-brow lifting. Mitzi Green isn't reporting to her alma mater, RKO, until she rests up from that intensive non-stop year in the legitimate. Joe Penner is sponsoring summer vacation for a hundred-underprivileged children—a la Cantor. Al Jolson is worrying about his thinning top. The new EmGeeEm exec building is really COLOSSAL..... suites for every producer on the lot with adjoining quarters for all his writers and assistants.... and their assistant-assistants.

Wedding bells are tuning up for Sylvia Sidney and Luther Adler... so they say.

Gloria Blondell very much resembles her better-known sister, Joan. A tourist, watching the sights on the Boulevard one afternoon, saw Gloria enter a department store. A few minutes later she was followed by Joan. "Jumpin' Jellyfish!" exclaimed the ogler. "All the gals around here look like Joan Blondell!"

Readying a scene with Maxie Rosenbloom, Director Anatol Litvak instructed the fighter-actor to stand under the lights for a camera line-up, and then went away. In a few minutes Maxie also walked out..... followed him to the lunchroom. When admonished for not being on the set, Max retorted he couldn't get a line-up without a director. "My assistant takes care of that," answered Litvak. "Well," slapped "Slapsie," "my stand-in is under the lights. He and your assistant ought to get along fine!"

The Editor's Chair:

I don't know how to start this chair because I'm under promise not to reveal too much about what I'm starting out to tell you.

But the blood of a newspaperman courses in my veins—fee fi fo fum—and I can't resist telling you just enough so that when the limitation is lifted I'll be able to say I knew about it all the time.

When the story does break, it'll be the biggest Jewish news ever to come out of Indianapolis. The plan will mean the salvation of 20,000 Jews. They will be brought out of Austria and Germany to a haven, the whereabouts of which was as much a gratifying surprise to me as it was to you. And this haven is being arranged through reliable national Jewish agencies and not, as in the case of Sirovitch and his Cuba, and The Jewish Spectator and its Southern California, by individuals without a proper understanding of the problems.

That's all I can tell you now. But in six months when the news will be flashed in the headlines of every newspaper in the land, then I can point back to this and say I wrote about it way back here, months ago.

That's my story this week. Remember this when I am "scooped" by the daily press because I preferred to see the plan prosper rather than to risk any slip-up by too early publicity.

Demand Jewish Social Workers Be Jewish

BOLDLY declaring that the present leadership in the American Jewish life is a leadership without any real knowledge of Judaism and warning that such a situation will lead to a dissipation of Jewish life in the United States, rabbis on two fronts last week attacked the secularism of Jewish welfare workers and community leaders.

Speaking at the Founder's Day services at Hebrew Union College in Cincinnati, Rabbi Solomon Foster, of Newark, N. J., demanded that Jewish lay workers "identify themselves with Judaism or cease serving Jews".

Making the same charge, Rabbi Jacob D. Schwartz, editor of The Synagogue, monthly publication of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations declared:

"Not that the social service agencies and the recreational centers have not performed thoroughly and well their task of meeting important community needs arising out of the necessities of the time. Nor do we intend to say that the philanthropic and social institutions that have dissociated themselves from the synagogue must be returned to it. What we find lacking is more fundamental. Our contention is that without the motivation and inspiration of Jewish faith and destiny, the foundations on which our communal structure rests are like dry bones without marrow. Our conviction is, that, cut off from the synagogue, the welfare edifice that has been so painstakingly reared, is like a beautiful fountain that will soon run dry.

Louisville Is Aroused

THE man has bitten the dog.

The Jewish community of Louisville has up and bitten the B'nai B'rith. Heretofore one of the sore spots in the B'nai B'rith Lodge with a membership of less than three hundred in a city of 10,000 Jews, the Louisville Lodge has been so long in the doldrums that even personal solicitation by a team composed of Alfred M. Cohen and Adolph Hitler wouldn't, it was almost certain, have stirred some of the astute members of the community to join the Order.

So last month the B'nai B'rith made ready, as it has done year after year, for another of its unavailing membership drives. Hugo Taustine, the new president, and Dave O'Koon, the vice-president enlisted the aid of Louis Cohen, whose illness for more than two years has kept him on the sidelines. In turn Charles W. Morris, head of the Louisville Conference of Jewish Organizations, joined in to help.

Fifty new members would have made Louisville glow like the rubicund nose of the ever-present Kentucky Colonel and his tinkling glass of mint julep.

So the drive got under way. Fifty members were enrolled. Ninety. One hundred and fifty.

The city woke up. The story is told—now a

Do you get the charge?

Think of the institutions you know. Does the shoe fit them?

The murmur of discontent, which up until now has been voiced only in private conversations, has swelled into open and forthright criticism.

On logic the change cannot be refuted.

Yet the censure of present-day Jewish leadership must not be too severe. If a man is a volunteer worker, a drive leader, who is there that may say, first be a good Jew, otherwise you will not be permitted to do your share to alleviate suffering and persecution.

On the score however of paid social workers, the full weight of the censure is justified. Heads of community centers and paid social workers can be expected to spend as much time during their training period in learning Jewish history and Jewish ethics, and law and religion, as they devote to acquiring knowledge of the theories of social psychology, or child training, or case work.

What is indicated, now that the first gun has been fired, is a general uprising among the rabinate for a most distinctly Jewish leadership in Jewish life. The complaint now being made is another phase of the drive towards embodying Jewish life in America with a genuine religious content. It is not only the social service field that is being subjected to scrutiny. The cry is be Jewish or don't be Jewish, but if the decision is to be Jewish then that decision must be implemented with definite action towards that goal.

legend which Jewish mothers will tell to their children in years to come—of the man who, enrolled one day, the next went out and signed up twenty-one others to join him in the initiation class.

Up went the number. One hundred and seventy-five. Workers were taking out twelve cards and bringing in ten signed applications.

Up again. At last reports the drive total stood at 208. A figure all the more remarkable when the fact is taken into consideration that the entire membership last year totalled only slightly higher. Expanding with justifiable pride, the workers lengthened the drive and, upping the quota to a 1,000 and set out to enroll the largest lodge in the nation.

So Louisville has rebelled. No longer can Louisville's Jewish community be classed in the list of those who have shirked their responsibilities. No. And no again. The last shall be the first. Louisville now can claim kinship with Cincinnati and Indianapolis, and complete the triumvirate of three fine Jewish communities. Now for the first time in years Louisville proclaims her undivided loyalty to Jewish causes and to the responsibilities which Judaism and Jewish blood imposes on her devotees.

becomes rebellious.... and must withdraw from the activity. Or else youth becomes obedient and respectful.... and impotent as well.

Rabbi Edward N. Calisch Of Richmond, Va., Says, Jews Are Prejudiced Against Christians.
We should harbor no hatred for those who put the stumbling blocks before us on the highways of the years. The church of today is not the church of the Middle Ages. It is true the church of today is not wholly innocent. But leading men, sages and scholars in and out of its pulpit, are seeking to make amends, to correct the misconceptions and the tragic errors of the past. Men like Moehlman, Moore, Hereford and others like them may be far in advance of their own people, but they are courageously leading the way, and in time the people will follow.

Surely we can be no less earnest in our efforts to bridge the gulf and dwell together in peace. A frank admission on our part of the unquestioned beneficence of the Christian faith, of admiration for the life and devoted ministry of its great teacher can be made on our part without in the least admitting the dogmas of its theology or weakening our loyalty to our own beloved faith.

Must Gain Foothold In Western Galilee

To The Editor:

In all the hubbub of farewells to the outgoing High Commissioner and welcomes to the new one, the Yishub has not forgotten that not a moment should be allowed to pass without adding to our political, economic and cultural gains. This is urgent because, when on the day when the fate of Eretz Israel finally comes to be decided, the assets we Jews will be able to produce, will turn the scales in our favor more than any other factor.

It is the policy of the Yishub, under the guidance of the Zionist Organization, to create assets in all parts of Eretz Israel where there has as yet been little or no Jewish settlement, concentrating on those areas where the lack of a substantial foothold may endanger our whole position in the country.

That is why Galilee is again in the limelight. When the Jewish National Fund launched its campaign last year for land redemption with the slogan "On To Galilee", the Huleh Project and the need for large-scale settlement on the land were emphasized as the chief factors in the situation. But since then Galilee has also become a very important political factor. It is strongly rumored in well-informed circles that certain plans have been put forward for excluding the western part of Galilee from the projected Jewish State. Significantly enough, there is very little Jewish land or Jewish settlement in that part of Galilee. In other words, we have few political assets there.

Hence—whether or not a partition scheme eventuates—we must lose no time in creating substantial Jewish assets in Galilee while there is yet time, and so forestall action which may do us irreparable harm. In the light of these facts, the Galilee Land Redemption Campaign which the National Fund is now conducting so energetically in many countries is seen to have the widest political implications. There lies the answer to those who have been complaining, rightly or wrongly, that individual Zionists no longer have the opportunity to function in a political sense, and that the Jewish people is being swept along by events instead of directing them. Yet no Zionist with a sense for practical politics needs to be told that the Galilee Land Redemption Campaign is proof positive that the Jewish people is taking the initiative to protect its interests. Giving and getting others to give, to the Galilee Land Redemption Campaign is therefore not only the elementary duty of the individual Zionist, but a test of his political capacity.

Though there are not many Jewish assets in the threatened section of Galilee, we have something of a beginning there which can be rapidly extended if the National Fund is provided with the requisite means. For there is much land to be bought in Galilee; Land is already being bought in Galilee, and land will continue to be bought there. C. L. Kloetzel.

New Jersey Assembly Seeks Easier Entry

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency
TRENTON—The New Jersey Assembly in a resolution offered by Henry Young, Jr., this week asked Congress to "suspend or amend the provisions of our immigration laws so that our country may afford a safe haven and quiet refuge for emigres."

"There is not a member here whose forebears did not come to America, seeking political, economic or religious freedom," said Mr. Young.
